COMPULSORY ANNEXATION.

HIGH-HANDED POLICY ADVOCATED BY A NEWARK PAPER.

Would Ignore Majority Sentiment in This Town—Newark's Desires Should Prevail—Advices Legislative Action Without a Referendum.

For the sake of public peace and tranquillity the annexation question ought to be laid to rest. It was defeated at the polls, and the defeat was decisive, and the agitation should be discontinued. The Newark newspapers, however, are not disposed to drop the matter, and persist in abusing the people who opposed annexation. The object, no doubt, is to keep the annexation question alive and to foment factional feeling in this town over the subject.

One of the most bitter articles published by the disappointed Newarkers appeared in the Sunday Call on the 10th inst., and was as follows:

"The defeat of annexation by Bloomfield was accomplished last week through a variety of causes, and once again demonstrated the difficulty of securing proper governmental division, except through the wise control of the supreme power which is vested in the Legislature, of which body all municipalities are agents and ministers. We heartily believe in home rule, but the test which has been made in a number of annexation projects has clearly shown that the small municipality does not meet the question fairly and squarely, for the best interests of the whole community. Frequently, those chiefly interested in maintaining a local government are the officials and politicians, who perceive their power endangered by absorption in a larger government; occasionally the opposition springs from false ideas and deceptive arguments, and from certain private interests, as was the case in Bloomfield last Thursday. Religious prejudice was carefully worked upon, with the argument that the saloon would control, as if the brewers would not find it easier to obtain their objects from the town government than from the general Excise Board of Newark. Anti-corporation sentiment was also used, although no advantage could be shown the corporation—the Public Service Company—and some loss seemed certain. The influence of persons concerned in a local water contract was apparent, and it was particularly discreditable.

"The Legislature is not, we admit, a trustworthy body at all times, but as a rule it is held in leash by political interests. It would not venture to annex Bloomfield to Newark if Bloomfield were largely against the plan, but it assured, as it is now, that all of Newark and about half of Bloomfield favored the union, surely it would be justified in making the change. To permit a few agitators to limit a number of selfless citizens of a town to defeat a beneficent project by misrepresentation and appeals to narrow prejudice seems most unjust.

"It would appear that the advocacy of annexation by the Public Service Corporation, although reasonable and apparently unselfish, was a powerful influence against the union of Newark and Bloomfield. It shows that, right or wrong, corporation interference with elections is resented."

The editor of the Sunday Call simply writes from an abstract point of view and knows nothing of the facts. He was not at the scene of battle, and when he arraigns the clergymen of this town, Catholic and Protestant alike, and the many good citizens who opposed annexation and charges them with being prompted in their opposition by "false ideas" and with using "deceptive arguments," the editor of the Sunday Call is going beyond the bounds of truth.

The Sunday Call intimates that one of the deceptive arguments was that, with annexation accomplished, the saloons would control. Now as to whether or not the people who voted against annexation were justified in their fears, let one instance of the campaign be brought forward as evidence. A meeting in favor of annexation was held Saturday evening, April 2, in Central Hall. In the course of the meeting an opponent of annexation was given privilege to speak. When in the course of his remarks he asserted that if Bloomfield was annexed to Newark we would have the open saloon and Sunday base-ball here the same as Newark now has such things. That statement was greeted by long continued howls of "That's what we want!" "That's what we want!" from the annexationists. To many of those present the outburst served as an alarming warning as to the character of the annexation movement. Again, one of the most effective arguments used on the moral phase of the question was the testimony of the Rev. Dr. Rose, a Newark clergyman, whose portrayal of the vicious condition of the city and the corruptness of its officials was not denied by Newarkers when Dr. Rose

Nearby Elections.

The Republican ticket was successful in Montclair on Tuesday. The chief contest was in the Fourth Ward, where Thomas Alsworth, Republican, defeated James Kennedy, Democrat, by 15 majority out of 530 votes polled.

The Republicans carried every ward in Nutley on Tuesday, and elected every candidate but one. Morton G. Kierstead was elected Councilman-at-Large.

In South Orange, Tuesday, the contest was between a Citizens' ticket and a Taxpayers' ticket, and the former won by 254 votes.

The special election in Valhalla on Tuesday, in which annexation to Newark was the issue, the annexationists won by a vote of 422 to 256. The annexationists owe the big majority to the "workers" who were on every street on Tuesday. Twelve carriages were used by them to convey voters to the polls.

The "antle" was handicapped because of the lack of funds, and could not afford the usual "election luxuries." The annexation leaders figured on from 80 to 100 majority, and the "antle" in the late afternoon admitted they were beaten, but 177 was not a thought of.

At North Caldwell, Tuesday, the following were elected officers of that borough: For Mayor, Charles B. Gould; Councilmen, Ralph C. Beach and Frederick Kusmaul; Assessor, Sherman Padock; Collector, William E. Captain; Commissioner of Appeals, Caleb H. Gould.

The Republican ticket in Caldwell Borough was elected Tuesday. Dr. Edmund R. Laipke, the candidate for Mayor being supported by both the political parties. William H. H. Condit and R. C. Bethell, Republican candidates for Councilmen were elected, the former by a majority of 30 over John Rickerich, Democrat. The vote was Condit 112 and Rickerich 82. Bethell beat Lynn G. Lockwood, Democrat, by 42 majority, the vote being Bethell 112 and Lockwood 70. Henry Harrison, Republican, who was nominated to fill an unexpired term of one year in the Council, was elected without opposition. Peter E. Jacobus was elected commissioner of appeals for three years.

The attempt to draw party lines in West Orange resulted once more in disaster for the Republicans, every candidate on the Citizens' ticket being elected. Even in the Third Ward, which is strongly Republican, the party ticket went down to defeat by an adverse vote of 112. In this ward the voting machines were used and the result was known four minutes after the polls were closed.

A Lively Chase.

An exciting runaway, in which Theodore Maxfield, the well-known horseman, was the principal figure, occurred Friday afternoon of last week. But for Mr. Maxfield's pluck and tact there might have been serious consequences.

A spirited horse, owned by W. Halsey Day and driven by a colored boy, became frightened as the fire truck dashed on its way to answer an alarm.

The horse dashed down Broad street, and at the lower end of the Common turned into Liberty street, with the driver tugging frantically at the reins.

Again the horse turned and took to the Common, up which it ran. The carriage just escaped collision with several trees. At Beach street the animal took to the road.

Mr. Maxfield was out in a sulky behind Ned W., which has a record of 2.13. He saw the runaway approach, and as it passed shouted to the driver to keep the horse from taking to the sidewalk. The horse turned his own head and made after the runaway until he got abreast, when he leaped over and with his right hand seized the horse's bridle close to the bit, while with his left hand he guided his own horse. He finally forced the horse down to a walk. Mr. Maxfield's daring act was applauded by all who witnessed it.

A Musical.

Miss Lucy Whitney gave a musical at her home, No. 212 Montgomery avenue, Thursday afternoon. The pupils who played were Miss Julie Biggart, Miss Inez Keyler, Miss Florence E. Philbrick, Miss Marion Conklin and Miss Margaret Keyler. Mrs. Robert Spear of New York sang a solo. The musical was enjoyed by many friends of the pupils, among whom were Mrs. Biggart, Mrs. Wm. H. Roworth, Mrs. Charles Keyler, Mrs. A. Curran, Mrs. H. Fuller, Mrs. J. Fairbanks, Mrs. G. T. Whitney and many others.

OLD LANDMARKS.

Brookdale's Historic House of Revolutionary Fame—Remarkable Longevity of Some of Its Occupants—A Well From Which Washington Drank.

Among the old landmarks of Revolutionary days in Essex county is the stone house known as the Stimis homestead or "Rose Cottage." It is located on Brookdale (formerly called Stone House Plains). It is said that when General Washington passed through that section the troops refreshed themselves at the old sweep well on the premises, now occupied by William Stimis. In 1880 Mr. Stimis purchased the house and five acres of land from the Alexander Lawrence estate. Then, Mr. Stimis says, the house was 175 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Stimis still live there, having built a frame structure and added former windows to the original house.

They there celebrated their golden wedding, and about two months ago their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary. The heavy crossbeams which support the low ceilings, and the iron hinges that hold the hard-wood doors, are still evidences of the structure's age. Mrs. Stimis, formerly Miss Susan Condit, was the daughter of the late Moses Condit of this town. She was married in Newark on February 27, 1849, by the late Rev. Dr. Scott of the First Reformed Church. They resided many years in the old homestead where Mr. Stimis was born, and which still stands on Riverside avenue, Newark, near Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Mr. Stimis is in his 81st year. He and his wife are a remarkably vigorous and interesting old couple. In the summer time the old house is nearly hidden amid the shrubbery, which includes over 150 varieties of choice rose bushes, the especial pride and care of the old gentleman. His two granddaughters, Stimis and Van Winkle, were both Revolutionary soldiers. The family on both sides inherits remarkable longevity, and there are still five generations on the side of Mr. Stimis, the first of which is represented by her aunt, Mrs. Sophia, wife of the late Lewis Ackerman and daughter of the late Isaac Powelson, all natives of Brookdale. Mrs. Ackerman is in her 98th year. She is very cheerful and happy and has all her faculties. Her mind is clear, and she takes much interest in everything that goes on about her. She lives with her son, Abram Ackerman of Brookdale. Henry Ackerman of Franklin is another son, and Mrs. Isaac Crawford of South Twelfth street, Newark, is a daughter. Mrs. William Stimis is the second generation and her five living children represent the third. These are Mrs. Elizabeth Link, Mrs. William Pierson, Frederick B. Stimis, all of this town; Wm. Stimis, Jr., of New York, and Mrs. Mary H. Baxter, who lives in the old house, and whose two sons, Frank M. Baxter of Brooklyn and Edward P. Baxter of this town, make the fourth generation. Master Wm. Baxter, in his sixth year, is one of the three great-grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stimis, and the great-grand-nephew of Mrs. Sophia Ackerman. He represents the fifth link in this family chain.

Empire Theatre.

"St. Hopkin," entirely new as to scenery and equipment, and with the biggest and best company which Miss Rose Melville, who has made the title character famous the world over, has ever had supporting her, will be the attraction at the Empire Theatre, Newark, for week beginning April 18. It will be the same "St. Hopkin" as of old, but in new dress, and there are new faces in the company. The story of the life of this simple-minded girl of Posey county, Indiana, will be told this season as it has never been told before. There is something about the play which appeals to the heart. There is nothing funnier anywhere on the stage than the "snake dance" of "St. Hopkin" on the boarding school, where she goes to take her first lessons in "being like other people." This will be Miss Melville's fifth season as "St. Hopkin," and they will have been seasons of unbroken and brilliant successes. Matinee on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.

Narrow Escape.

Benjamin Van Keuren of Rondout, N. Y., who is stopping with his uncle, Harry Mahoney, No. 288 Glenwood avenue, had a somewhat startling experience at the Washington street crossing of the Lackawanna Sunday afternoon. He had walked down the railroad track from Glen Ridge, and as he attempted to step off the track his left foot became wedged between the track and plank on the crossing.

An eastbound train was just about leaving the Glen Ridge station and Gate-man Hall, who was on duty at the crossing, ran to Van Keuren's assistance, but they could not extricate the foot. The train was coming down the steep grade, and just as the gateman ran to flag it Van Keuren, by a mighty effort, wrenched his foot free, leaving the shoe behind. His foot was severely hurt, but his life was saved, as the train dashed by with a few seconds later.

POLICY FOR THE FUTURE.

As Outlined by One Who Has Faith in the Ability of Bloomfield to Administer Their Own Municipal Affairs—Plain Talk to Annexationists—Plan for Unity and Harmony.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CITIZEN: Sir: I congratulate you for the measure of success that has attended your efforts in defeating the attempt to annex our town to the city of Newark. Our people are to be congratulated that home rule prevails. The hearty thanks of the people should be accorded the voters for standing by our town, showing by their ballots confidence in our ability to govern our municipality through our own citizens.

It was undoubtedly the honest opinion of the gentlemen who advocated going into Newark that our town would be benefited by such a move, and it is not possible that any of them advised such a course from selfish or ulterior motives. We must give them full credit for honestly believing that which they advocated so earnestly and strenuously. The writer, however, has been unable to comprehend why these men whom we have honored with our confidence, and whose judgment we have followed in matters political, should without apparent cause wish to abandon the town to the uncertain mercies of Newark.

Two years ago they were as much opposed to such a step as it was possible to be, and fought annexation with all the energy at their command. One of these gentlemen has been exceeding fair, and advised the citizens of Bloomfield that Newark could not and did not promise anything, but further explained in a fair and frank manner his reasons for a change of attitude. Those who were unable to agree with him honored him because of his frankness and fairness, and in comparison we are told by another who was a strong advocate of annexation that a change of sentiment and opinion was an individual matter, and that he would explain his change in this particular in his own home. No public statement has been made that the writer has seen or heard of that in any way explains this great change by the late advocates of annexation in their opinions in the past two years, except the one noted. These gentlemen in the past have given their energy, time and best judgment to our municipal affairs, and for that which has been accomplished in times past we are in a large measure indebted to them, and I believe that they, with all the other citizens, will endeavor to make it the best town in Essex county.

Annexation is a back number. The future is before us. Let us take care of that, and let no part of our town suffer at the expense of another. Watch the men in our Council, and see to it that they represent us honestly and intelligently. Watch our tax assessors, and see that no favoritism be shown. Publish a list of taxpayers, so that we may make comparisons, and possibly we can find a way to reduce the present tax rate. Force collection of all taxes in arrears. Adjust the water question, so that we shall have at right cost to the consumer an abundant supply of pure, wholesome water. Keep our roads in good repair, and do not forget that our neighbors in Brookdale are entitled to the same consideration as our neighbors in and near the Centre.

Again congratulating you on the outcome of the recent election, accomplished very largely through your efforts, I am, Yours very sincerely, H. GRINNELL DISBROW.

Christian Stewardship.

The Rev. Charles A. Cook, superintendent of the Christian Stewardship Department of the National Baptist denomination, preached the sermon at the quarterly meeting under the auspices of the Bloomfield Evangelical Union held in the Westminster Church Sunday night. There was a large congregation present and the Rev. Mr. Cook gave an interesting discourse on the subject of Christian Stewardship, and particularly of the work over which he has charge for the Baptist denomination.

The Union Outlet Sewer.

The Belleville Board of Health has again taken action in reference to the Orange outlet sewer, which empties into the Passaic river near Second river. Last summer there was a great deal of complaint in regard to the nuisance caused by the leakage and overflow of the sewer into Second river. Complaint was also made at that time that the gates at the mouth of the sewer were kept open in violation of the agreement to open them only during the outgoing tides. The Board of Health of Belleville has ordered its inspectors to keep watch over the matter, in order to prevent a recurrence of the nuisance of last summer. It is claimed that the receiving basin on Second river's edge is too small for the municipalities that use it. The sewer is the one that passes through this town, and breaks have frequently occurred here, much to the discomfort of our residents.

Dangerous Mischief.

A gang of mischievous boys indulged in a prank Thursday night of a dangerous character. They rolled the carriage stepping stones from in front of houses along Broad street, between Liberty and Park streets, out into the street. The matter has been reported to the police and will be investigated.

Mrs. Joana Bennett-Francis.

On Monday evening, April 11, about 11 o'clock, Mrs. Joana Bennett-Francis, the wife of our esteemed fellow citizen Mr. Wm. A. Francis, passed away to the "better land" after a long and very painful illness. All that medical skill and kind and constant nursing could do was done, but without avail.

The older residents of Bloomfield will remember her father, Mr. J. B. Harvey, who for many years carried on a stove and plumbing and roofing business on Bloomfield avenue. He was a man very highly regarded by his fellow townsmen. His daughter Joana resembled him in his happy disposition. Her cheerful words, bright face and pleasant smile will long be remembered and missed by those who knew her. Her indomitable perseverance, her endurance and courage were manifested on all occasions. Her last illness, so very long, painful and hopeless, was endured without a murmur or complaint, with a courage and nerve hardly equalled, and with a calm trust in the God of Love, meekly bowing to the Divine will. Mrs. Bennett-Francis was born in Bloomfield and this has always been her home. She was for many years a member of the First Presbyterian Church, having served very acceptably in the choir of that church. She afterwards, on her marriage, became connected with the Park M. E. Church, of which her husband is a member. Her attainments as a singer and music teacher were of an exceptional character. Her social gifts, her genial and loving disposition in home and society, won for her many friends and made the breaking of the home and social circle very hard indeed. She died in the enjoyment of a blessed hope in Christ and is now at home with her Lord and Master in the bright land where pain is unknown. This grateful tribute is borne by one who knew the deceased for many years and is glad to bear this testimony to her worth.

Sudden Death.

While attending a prayer meeting service in the Glen Ridge Congregational Church Wednesday night, George A. Zabrickie, one of the deacons and organizers of that church, was stricken with heart trouble. He was removed to his home, No. 44 Linden avenue, Glen Ridge, and died at midnight without regaining consciousness. When Mr. Zabrickie was stricken the church members rendered all aid possible and a physician was summoned, but they were powerless to help him.

Mr. Zabrickie had been assistant cashier of the People's Bank, New York, for more than thirty years. He was 55 years old and a member of Bloomfield Council, Royal Arcanum; Excelsior Lodge, Knights of Honor; Loyal Additional Association, Holland Society of New York, and an honorary member of Essex Hook and Ladder Company. He was also a member of the Essex County Building and Loan Board of Directors. Previous to the reorganization of the Glen Ridge Church, Mr. Zabrickie was a member of the Park M. E. Church and a teacher in the Sunday-school of that church.

Besides his wife, Mr. Zabrickie is survived by one son and a daughter. The funeral will be held in the Glen Ridge Congregational Church this afternoon.

Death of Mrs. Omberon.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wye Omberon, widow of John Omberon, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hiram L. Van Gleason, No. 16 Grace street. She was eighty-six years of age. The funeral service took place Tuesday evening and was attended by many old friends of the deceased. The Rev. Joseph B. Maxfield of the First Baptist Church conducted the service. Mr. and Mrs. Omberon took up their residence in this town about half a century ago. They were among the early members of the First Baptist Church and Mr. Omberon was very active in the work of the church and a very liberal contributor to its support. Mrs. Omberon was held in high esteem by many of the old residents of this town. She is survived by two daughters and a son.

Death of Mrs. Barrett.

Word was received here Monday morning of the death at New Rochelle, N. Y., of Mrs. Sarah Randolph Barrett, widow of James M. Barrett, and mother of Halsey M. Barrett. Mrs. Barrett had lived here many years, but two years ago went to New Rochelle to live with her daughter, Mrs. Walter M. Elliott, at whose home she died. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church. She is survived by one son and three daughters. She was seventy-nine years old. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Bourne, in Belleville avenue.

Bicycle Thief Caught.

Spencer Jones, a colored boy, about 14 years old, is in the custody of the county authorities pending the disposition of his case by Judge Skinner. The boy is the step-son of Thomas Womble of Belmont avenue, Belleville, and not long since he stole a bicycle belonging to one of the sons of Richard Schuyler in Belleville avenue. The colored boy rode to Rockaway, Morris county, on the wheel, and he found a colored family there who took him in. A few days ago the colored man, who gave the boy shelter, had occasion to go to Newark, and he came here to make some inquiry about the boy he had taken in. Mr. Womble went to Rockaway and got the boy, and he was given over to the custody of the police, who in turn transferred him to the county authorities. He will probably be placed in a reformatory.
